

Leaving behind a financial legacy to your loved ones

Death is a matter people avoid thinking about. That may explain why many people have not made their wills or before that, consider getting an appropriate life insurance plan which provides an immediate estate. For the sake of your loved ones, take some time to reflect on the 'what-if' situation and how your loved ones will be left to deal with outstanding financial matters when you are no longer around.

Next Saturday, litigation lawyer Foo Soon Yien from Bernard & Rada Law Corp will tell you why making a will is crucial in ensuring your family's financial security. She will share the intricacies of drafting a will and the factors to consider. Ms Foo will also discuss the problems and scenarios of not having a proper will.

Being prepared for the unexpected can make a huge difference to the ones you leave behind. Ms Angeline Tan from Life Insurance Association will discuss the different types of life insurance that can safeguard the immediate and ongoing financial needs of your loved ones. She will also tell you how financial needs change at every life stage and what you can do to ensure you have the right protection in place.
